One thing I think may be of benefit for Accountants and Lawyers who are in the practice of forming companies for clients would be to have a sign-on and password log in where we can access all the companies we have created. This would allow us one platform to enter and do all needed reports and help protect the business filing without having an individual required secure filing for each one.

Many states have implemented this type of access, such as Washington. It also has a countdown to days the report is due, which is nice but not necessary.
