Subject: Internet voting mean fraudulent elections

When the first free elections were held in Iraq, voters appeared in person at the polls. We may think this is primitive, in the digital age, but it is much less prone to fraud. Free elections require integrity and integrity requires simplicity. Just ask those of us who have been exposed to the pressures of online hacking of personal information how secure the internet is. Ask millions of government employees whose personal information has been hacked about the security of internet servers.

Free and honest elections are maintained by voters who appear in person at the polls with photo id! Please do not allow voters to use the internet. Having worked in computer security for nearly 20 years, I can testify to an increasingly insecure internet.

Thank you for preserving the integrity of our elections in Colorado.
