I would like to comment: I've been a notary for many years, when you quit sending out cards to remind us to renew, I lost track of my renewal date and didn't renew on time so I had to take the training over again and pay for it. If I have to take training every time I renew I would just let my notary go. I don't use my notary very much, maybe 20 times a year so it wouldn't be worth while for me to take training every time I renew even if it is free. If you let the notaries know what the changes are why should they have to take the training over every time they renew?
